FOURTH DAY.

SPECULATIONS.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The Tribune says last night's demonstrations and vote on the adjournment shows Blaine's great strength and indicates his nomination. The Inter Ocean says the situation is practically unchanged; that southern delegates remain firm for Arthur and that Blaine's forces stick with great tenacity; that Sherman, Logan and Edmunds were waiting and hoping for a break in Arthur or Blaine's forces. The Times refrains from predictions; says none of the nominating speeches equalled those of Conkling and Garfield four years ago. It is generally thought a result will not be reached to-day unless there should be a second session. Blaine men predict his nomination on the second or third ballot.

THE CRUSH.

CHICAGO, June 6.—One hour and a half before the time of the convention to assemble vast crowds of people were in front of the entrance waiting for the doors to open. It seemed as if there had been no change from last night, when thousands demanded admission to a hall already crowded. The doorknobs, police, and sergeant-at-arms exercised great patience and there was little irritation.

The rumor this morning in the air is that the independents, alarmed at the strong Blaine demonstration last night, have determined to cast the vote of Massachusetts and Vermont on the second ballot for Gen. Wm. Tecumseh Sherman.

It was 20 minutes past the hour for meeting when the gavel fell, and the chairman announced that the convention would be opened by prayer by Rev. Dr. Scudder, of the Presbyterian church.

The chairman announced that the convention would now proceed to ballot. The roll of states was called and resulted as follows:

The official footing of the first ballot is as follows: Blaine, 334; Arthur, 278; Edmunds, 93; Logan, 63; John Sherman, 30; Hawley, 13; Lincoln, 4; Gen. Sherman, 2.

Blaine's friends claim his nomination on the next ballot.

Blaine's friends claim Illinois' total vote will go him on the next ballot. Great excitement.

TRYING TO ADJOURN.

The announcement of the result of the ballot created tremendous excitement, which continued for several minutes, the chair vainly endeavoring to restore order. Dozens of delegates were on their feet endeavoring to secure the attention of the chair. Motions to adjourn till 7:30 were made and seconded. The Blaine men resisted the motion, but the chair put the question to the house. The confusion at this time (2:30 p. m.) was so great that it was impossible to decide the question by a rising vote, and a call of states was ordered on the next ballot.

The roll called 15 against and 29 for adjournment. A poll was demanded.

The vote on adjournment was lost.

Foraker moved that Blaine be nominated by acclamation.

Rooseville of New York, demanded the call of the roll. Great excitement.

Foraker withdrew motion in order to save time.

THE ILLINOIS INCIDENT.

THE CHAIR TO BLAINE.

During the taking of the fourth ballot, when Illinois was called, the chairman of the delegation, Mr. S. M. Cullom, said:

"I ask leave of this convention to read a dispatch, which I have just received from General Jan. A. Logan, addressed to the Illinois delegation. [Loud cries of 'Regular order!'] 'Regular order!'] 'We object!'] 'Call the roll!'] and great confusion.]

Mr. Cullom—"To the republicans. [Loud cries of 'Order!'] 'Call the roll!'] 'Regular order!'] I am directed by General Logan to read to this convention, and shall read a dispatch to the effect as follows: [Loud cries of 'No! No!'] and great confusion.]

Mr. Burrows, of Michigan—"I make the point of order that the reading of the dispatch is not in order, and nothing but the announcement of the vote is in order. [Loud applause.]

The chair—"The chair sustains the point of order. [Loud applause.]

Cullom—"The Illinois delegation then withdraws the name of General Logan and votes: For Blaine 34 votes; for Logan 7; for Arthur 3. [Loud cheers.]

The chair—"The secretary will announce the vote of the state of Illinois. The Secretary—"For Arthur, 3. [Great confusion in the hall and continued uproar which lasted 10 minutes.]

Cullom—"Mr. Chairman, I desire to hear the announcement of the vote, and I hope there will be order restored here, I desire to hear the announcement of the vote of Illinois.

The Chair—"The gentleman will repeat the vote of Illinois.

Cullom—"Now if the gentlemen will be quiet we will have this thing in order. [Loud and long continued cheering resumed.] 7 votes for John A. Logan, and 3 votes for Chester A. Arthur.

The secretary then read the vote from the desk amid great cheering.

Fifor of Illinois—"For fear there were some mistake, I challenge the vote of Illinois and demand a call of the roll. [Loud cries of "No!"] "No!"] "Sit down." Cullom—"I want to know whether this gentleman challenges the vote of Illinois—a vote which he made himself! [Great confusion.]

Mr. Fifor—"I challenge the vote and demand the roll call.

The Chair—"The secretary will call the roll of the state of Illinois.

The secretary did so. The result showed all the Illinois delegates voting for Blaine, except John M. Hamilton, (for Arthur), and W. W. Berry, Geo. K. Ingham, Harrison Black, John J. Rinker, E. A. Halbert and W. McAdams (for Logan).

The change in Illinois from Logan to Blaine made the Blaine's votes 414. The vote was a gain to Blaine of 31, to Arthur of 2, and a loss to Logan of 33.

THURSTON.

When the state of Nebraska was reached, Mr. Thurston arose and said: "Mr. Chairman, Nebraska wish her fifty thousand republicans."

The profound contempt for the audience for further oratory was shown in the most vociferous manner. The chairman finally succeeded in getting order and Mr. Thurston continued:

"Cast 10 votes for James G. Blaine." And sat down amid tremendous noise. This was a gain of 2 by Blaine from Arthur.

LOGAN'S WITHDRAWAL.

AND HIS ENDORSEMENT OF BLAINE.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The following dispatch was received: "WASHINGTON, June 6.—C. M. Cullom, Illinois delegation. The republicans of the states that must be relied upon to elect the president have so strongly shown a preference for Mr. Blaine, I deem it my duty not to stand in the way of the people's choice, and recommend my friends to assist his nomination. (Signed) JOHN A. LOGAN.

PUCK'S FIGURES.

HOW IT STAINED A ROW.

CHICAGO, June 6.—There was an exciting scene about midnight last night in the Colorado headquarters, which would have resulted in bloodshed but for the prompt interference of the police. A number of Blaine's managers were holding a meeting with closed doors, when a young man carrying an armful of circulars entered. The circulars contained a reproduction of Puck's "Tattooed Man," which are being distributed everywhere for political effect by a few ultra anti-Blaine men. It appears that the meeting was being held to discuss the best means of suppressing the further circulation of these campaign circulars, and when the young man entered their midst and commenced scattering them all over the room there was an intense excitement. One man jumped up and catching the intruder by the throat pulled him to the door and flung him out into the hall, when he was beset by a dozen other heretics of Blaine. They kicked and pounded him, and were rapidly reducing him to jelly, when some friends came up. Revolvers were pulled on both sides at once, but bloodshed was prevented by the appearance of officers who rescued the bold news agent.

THE VICE-PRESIDENCY.

THE EVENING SESSION.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Considering that all the excitement and interest in the convention culminated to-day in the nomination of Mr. Blaine for the presidency, there was a very large attendance as well of delegates as of spectators, at the evening session. The galleries were hardly less crowded than at any of the preceding sessions, but there was a marked absence of any other feeling than of simple curiosity.

PRAYER BY AN IRISH CATHOLIC PRIEST.

It was 8:15 p. m. when the chairman's gavel fell and announced that prayer would be offered by Rev. Dr. O'Reilly of Detroit. Dr. O'Reilly is treasurer of the Irish National League of America, and is the first Catholic to open a republican convention with prayer. It may be said that republicans have introduced two new features in this convention: A colored man as temporary chairman and a representative of the Catholic church invited to participate in the official proceedings on an equal with protestant ministers. Dr. O'Reilly is a lifelong republican.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

At conclusion of the prayer the chair called for the names of members of the national committee which had not been already sent up. Florida announced the name of Jesse G. Coles; the District of Columbia, Col. Perry Carson.

A resolution was passed, permitting the state central committees to name the members of national committees not already named.

Mr. Conger, from the District of Columbia, said the names of Carson had not been agreed upon by the delegation.

The chair decided the gentleman out of order, pending action of a resolution to limit the vice-presidency nominating speeches to ten minutes, which might be divided between two or more speakers.

Mr. Conger—"I want to know who the voice of the District of Columbia to be expressed by the chairman."

The Chair—"I was much wish I could do so. [Laughter.]

Mr. Conger insisted on speaking amid much laughter and confusion.

When order was restored, it was announced on behalf of New Mexico that Stephen B. Elkins had been substituted as a member of the national committee for the gentleman previously announced, owing to the resignation of the latter.

Conger, of the District of Columbia, again inquired whether Carson's name had been put on the roll as a member of the national committee.

The Chair—"It has."

Mr. Conger again protested but without success.

The resolution limiting the speeches of nomination to ten minutes was passed, and the clerk proceeded to call the roll of states for nominations.

No response was heard until Illinois was reached, when Senator Plumb, of Kansas came forward. He said the convention had completed two of its most serious duties: the adoption of a platform and the nomination of a candidate for president. The platform was one on which all good republicans could unite, and the candidate who could beat any democrat living or dead; but it was still important that the best possible man should be named for the second place. It was but a matter of just recognition to the great army of soldiers of the war for the Union that a representative from their number should be placed on second place of ticket. The Grand Army of the Republic had enrolled more than three-quarters of a million men, who lately wore the blue. In presenting a name from their ranks the speaker would mention a man fitted in every way for the place; a man who would add strength to the ticket and justify the hopes and expectations of the party. That man was General John A. Logan. [Loud, long and renewed applause.]

The speaker did not present him in behalf of Illinois or any of the other states, but of the whole United States. He belonged no more to Illinois than to Kansas, where 75,000 soldiers would receive the news of his nomination with shouts of gladness. The speaker was commended by the state of Kansas to make this nomination. [Applause.]

of Tennessee, in seconding the nomination said that while the convention had not seen fit to nominate his first choice it had done well and the speaker proceeded to pay a tribute to the "Plumed Knight" of Maine. He hoped the convention would come to a common understanding and agreement for the second place on the ticket. When the immense multitude was of a nature that could not help but stir the blood in the veins of the dullest clod. These scenes occurred whenever a full vote was announced, or on the occasion of some state breaking for Blaine. Outside of the convention was another great host of waiting people whose responsive shouts when the result of the ballots were bulletined, could be distinctly heard inside the great structure.

THE DELIRIUM.

reached its climax when Illinois joined the column of Blaine states, almost surely pressing victory for the Maine man. The hall fairly thundered as the swaying audience gave vent to its fierce enthusiasm. Hats went into the air, handkerchiefs were waved frantically, and the flags and decorations were torn from the face of the gallery, and were made to cut their way through the air by those occupants of the gallery who had seized upon some measure spent itself, the gavel of the chairman would serve to bring out order, and the audience would release again into a condition of apparent repose to be succeeded again by a season of excitement as the successive votes were announced. When the fourth ballot was finally declared it was a signal for a mighty cheer, and when the detonation of the artillery outside the building served with Blaine and Logan his state could be carried for the party by 5,000.

SUSPENDING THE RULES.

After further nominations from Georgia and Kentucky, a motion was made to suspend the rules and make nomination of Logan by acclamation. It was put to a vote and the majority voted for it, but as a two-thirds vote was necessary the chair ordered the roll called in order to ascertain numbers. At the request of delegates, who said there were others who wished to speak, Logan, the motion to suspend the rules was withdrawn.

Bradley, of Kentucky, eulogized the statesmanship and soldierly qualities of the man whose name was before the convention, and predicted that if he were nominated for the second place, the ticket would sweep the country.

Lee, of South Carolina, said his state had raised the first colored soldiers to fight for the Union and their hearts would be rejected at this nomination.

A Tennessee delegate (interrupting)—In the name of three-quarters of a million soldiers who did not stay at home during the war, I nominate "Black Jack" Logan. Several other nominating speeches were made.

O'Hara, of North Carolina—I suggest that we proceed to nominate General Logan, and allow others who want to talk, the privilege of printing their speeches. [Laughter.]

CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS FOR LOGAN.

A Virginia delegate said that in the absence of General Mahone, owing to illness, he would undertake to speak for Virginia. He could not, like many who preceded him, appeal in behalf of union soldiers for Logan's nomination; but he would speak for 300,000 confederate soldiers, of whom he was one, who would rally to the support of Blaine and Logan.

General J. S. Robinson, of Ohio, seconded the nomination on behalf of his state, and moved to suspend the rules and make the nomination by acclamation.

The question being put to a vote, was declared carried. Great confusion followed. The Kansas banner was brought out again, with the portrait of Logan added to that of Blaine.

When quiet was restored Congressman Davis, of Illinois, demanded a call of the roll on the nomination, and the motion being seconded, it was so ordered.

When Oar York was reached George Wm. Curtis announced that the delegation was not quite ready and asked for further time to make the count.

The request was granted and the call was proceeded with of the remaining states. A laugh was raised when the District of Columbia was reached and its two delegates rose in turn and voted for Logan, this being the first time since the opening of the convention on which they voted on the same side of any question before the house.

NEW YORK'S DISSENTING SEVEN.

The
